

WHALEY GIRL'S HIDING PLACE MAY BE IN LOUISIANA

V. O. Jones, of Emden, La., Believes Eloping Heiress Is Now in His Home.

SENDS NEWS IN LETTER.

Says Girl Was Taken There by a Man Giving Name of "Cook."

In a letter received to-day by Samuel Wright, Clerk to Surrogate Jackson, of Nassau County, from V. O. Jones, of Emden, La., the possible whereabouts of Floretta Whaley, the Hempstead, L. I. heiress, who eloped with the Rev. Jere Knobe Cooke, pastor of St. George's Episcopal Church, of that town, last spring, may be revealed.

The letter is written in a bold, legible hand and on excellent paper. It reads: "I saw a newspaper here where you are inquiring for a little girl named Floretta Whaley, who has been missing since last spring. I will say that I have a girl with me by that name. She has been here since last April. I do not know her age, but I would judge she should be seventeen or eighteen years old. She may be a trifle older."

Gave the Name of "Cook." "She was brought here by a man who said his name was 'Cook.' He said she was his step-child, her mother being dead and he not being able to take care of her. I am sending her to school. She is a devoted, loving little girl, and says she likes my family as well as she did her own."

V. O. JONES. Mr. Wright has turned the letter over to District Attorney Coles, who wants Cooke arrested on the charge of abduction. A reply was sent to Mr. Jones to-day asking further information as to the girl and the man who took her to the little town which is located near the southern boundary of Winn County on a branch line of the Louisiana Railway and Navigation Company.

The Elopement Recalled. Long Island church circles were shocked last April at the strange disappearance of the daughter of one of its parishioners. Diligent search failed to disclose where the couple had gone. There were reports from the Adirondacks and other places that Cooke and the Whaley girl had been located, but no positive evidence of their refuge has been found.

The will of the girl's father, John P. Whaley, will be admitted to probate next Wednesday. The girl is believed to be the will to the extent of several thousand dollars. For this reason the Nassau County authorities will make an endeavor to learn if the Whaley girl is in Louisiana.

DUPED WOMAN FREE FROM CONVICT MATE

Matilda L. Kleinkecht was freed today from James Frederick Bernoltz by Justice Blaesoff in the Supreme Court. Their marriage was a nullity because she was the victim of deception.

They were married Oct. 2, 1906, by Rev. Adam Boach at No. 317 Fountain avenue, Bronx. The bridegroom spent money lavishly during the honeymoon, but within two months the police arrested him, and then came the revelation that, under a dozen names, he had been a burglar for years. He was convicted in December, 1906, and sent to Clinton Prison, where he is serving a long sentence.

Annie and Jennie Reines got the evidence upon which Mrs. Anna Balog was given an interlocutory divorce decree against Samuel Balog, of the Japan Cafe, No. 144 Second avenue, by Justice Nyquist to-day.

The young women testified that March 25 last they followed Samuel and a slender woman to the transfer Hotel, No. 157 East Forty-second street, and visited the room assigned to Balog. The slender woman covered up her head and screamed, while Balog consigned the intruders to a place where nobody told the janitor the radiators are not working.

The Balogs had been married nine months when Samuel indulged in this flirtation.

P. Pfeiffer, of the Hotel Van Glimh, maintained Miss Gafney as his hotel mate at No. 23 West Forty-ninth street. Justice Newburger granted an interlocutory decree of divorce to-day to Nettie Bonnier Pfeiffer. The hotel man did not offer any defense.

Frail Factory Girl, 21 Years Old, the Leader of the East Side Strike to Secure Lower Rents

Pauline Newmann a Remarkable Figure in a Unique Phase of the Industrial Struggle.

WORKS DAILY ON SHIRT WAISTS.

Is in Poor Health, Highly Intellectual, and Proud of the Fact that She Is a Socialist.

BY ROSE TILLOTSON.

"America is the land of the rich and the home of the slave," said Miss Pauline Newmann, to whose energy and advice is directly due the tenants' strike against landlords on the east side.

This factory girl of twenty-one, the head of 30,000 strikers, stands out as the most remarkable figure in New York's latest industrial struggle. No frenzied, excitable girl is she, who wildly preaches revolt, but a quiet, determined, highly intelligent leader of a well organized, enthusiastic band. Miss Newmann is an extraordinary type of the working girl of to-day.

Well educated for one in her station of life, a contributor to the Jewish Forward, where she is considered a brilliant writer, deeply thoughtful and fully conversant with the horrors of poverty, she is eminently fitted to direct the east side tenement dwellers in their fight for reduced rents. She has learned from bitter experience that life is a never-ending struggle.

Is Frail Working Girl. Small in stature, with a thin, stooped figure, the antipodes of good health and spirit, her face is sallow and thin and seldom wreathed in smiles. It is the face of a woman who has known hard knocks, not that of the average girl, for Miss Newmann has long realized "the hopelessness of the poor," as she expresses it.

I found Miss Newmann hard at work at her loom in a shirt waist factory at No. 175 Wooster street. Seemingly undisturbed by her duties as leader of 30,000 strikers, she put the finishing touches to a lacy, frivolous garment as she talked. "Yes, America is the land of the rich and the home of the slave," she repeated, "for it is here one must work forever for what?—a piece of dry bread. Eight years ago I came here from Russia, fondly dreaming that in this country there were no class divisions, and that I might rise to heights unknown to my native land. But I was doomed to disappointment. I began to read books and newspapers and soon found that heretofore, the poor have no chance at all. The working people are not only unfairly treated, they are actually robbed. "Where does all the money come from? It is the blood of thousands of factory girls and women, who are paid one-fourth of their actual worth. Three-fourths of our product goes to the capitalists, the rest comes to their driven slaves, who are forced to accept this pittance in order to obtain daily bread."

Has Hope in Socialism. "Are you a Socialist?" I inquired, as Miss Newmann paused for breath. "Yes," she proudly acknowledged, "for the last four years I have been an ardent member of the socialist party. For I learned early in life that it is only combined effort which will better conditions. Socialism is not a dream; it is a philosophy which must be studied by all who seek relief for the working people's only hope is through socialism. My desire is to agitate, to educate the poorer classes so they may understand our position and take action upon it."

"You say in America that all are free, that there are no class distinctions, but that is untrue. In no country in the world is there such rigid division. There are two great classes—the rich and the poor—and there are so greatly separated that it will take many years to break down the barriers."

"Do you think that eventually the two classes will merge?" "Yes," answered Miss Newmann in a decisive way, "for socialism will undoubtedly bring this about. The poor will gain—well, to put it in a short word—freedom; the capitalists will not be allowed to reap all the benefits of our hard work, and then justice, not the golden calf, will reign supreme."

"Slaves" Under System. "I do not believe that a person should have a lifetime and receive in return merely dry bread. That is what I am doing now. Eleven hours a day I am enslaved in this place. The sunshine and fresh air are not mine, and my labors go to swell the coffers of the rich. Our wages are so small we cannot save a cent, so that we are practically forced to remain here whether we will or no. I have been here eight years, and to-day am not earning a cent more than when I first came myself, let alone my family. Of course, the capitalists oppose socialism. It is to their interest to do so; but the combined energy of the masses will surely remove the evils of the present system."

The Rent Revolt. "It is the east side wife and mother who must face the problem of how to make ends meet on the few dollars her husband earns. If it all goes in rent there is nothing left for food, so she is determined to lend to any temporary hardship in order to accomplish her ends. "The hard times have played havoc among the poor. Many men are out of work."

LESLEY CARTER VERY ILL. CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—Lesley Carter, lawyer and capitalist, is reported critically ill from gas poisoning at his home, in Case street.

GYPSY PRINCESS ROBBED, SHE SAYS, OF $45,000 "DOT"

Whole Tribe of Stanleys Haled to Court on Charge of Conspiracy.

Several full hands of queens, double runs of princesses and princes enough to stock the royal nurseries in Europe were shuffled to-day in the Westchester Court when Police Capt. Ward, of the Wakefield station, arraigned 100 prisoners, charged with the theft of Princess Ethel Stanley's dowry of $45,000 in gold coin of a dozen realms, bank notes and enough jewels to swamp a Spanish galleon.

Queen Ethel is of royal gypsy blood, and all the prisoners were princes of her tribe. They are: Princess William Stanley, twenty-three years old; Gustave Stanley, fifty-six years old; Michael Stanley, twenty-eight years old; Bird Stanley, fourteen years old; Mortimer Stanley, twenty years old; Stephen Stanley, thirty-one years old; George Glik, sixteen years old; Halsey Glik, nineteen years old; and Stephen Jarden, eighteen years old. Then there is Prince Richard Stanley, Princess Ethel's brother, who is alleged to have vanished with the bag of coin and a ton or so of jewelry.

Theft Followed Feud. The theft occurred in the Kruse-Pierce gypsy camp on the White Plains road, near Pelham Parkway, last night, just as the marriage contract was about to be sealed with a royal seal; for, be it known, beautiful Ethel is engaged to wed gallant John Kruse, the horseback prince of the Kruse-Pierce tribe.

There are three tribes of Romany royalties and their subjects are scattered along the White Plains road. They were until recently bunched with the Stanley tribe. But there was a plethora of Queens, all of whom desired to rule. There are Queens Bell, Bess and Dora. So, after wars of words and threats of bloody battle, the camp split up. Queen Bell continued on the job at the Stanley camp. Queen Dora took her bunch up the road and organized the Kruse-Pierce camp, and Queen Bess took her crown and set up the Maiti camp.

John Kruse, the horseback prince, was all this time wooing beautiful Ethel. She told Queen Dora about it and she told Queen Bess. Dora and Bess got together and it looked like a fight.

Bess asked Dora if she could get together a dowry worth while. "Could not," Dora said, "there were no 500 pounds sterling to begin with, and then a few bundles of English banknotes, just enough to sink an elephant and a silver chain studded with diamonds."

"It's pretty good," said Queen Bess. "But I'm not the dot and let us look it over before we sign the contract. Last night Queen Dora packed the wedding dowry on a string of ponies and drove to the Kruse-Pierce camp. All the Stanleys were there, and so were some royalties from Canada and the small gypsy regions of the United States. Queen Dora was accompanied by the eagle-eyed little Prince Maiti, who is only fifteen years old."

Everybody was having a lovely time when little Prince Maiti came shrieking from the treasure tent. He had seen Prince Dick swipe the dowry bag, he said, load it on a horse and gallop away. Comment on Prince Dick's conduct could be heard in the Bronx Zoo and the Wakefield reserves arrived on the run. Queen Dora accused the total Stanley tribe. Their arrest followed.

NAMES HIS BROTHER IN ACCUSING WIFE

Benjamin Levy, in Applying for Divorce, Says She Lives With Cloak Manufacturer.

Mrs. Anna Levy, proprietress of the Spanish Cafe at Coney Island, accused by her husband, Benjamin, with appearing as the wife of his brother, David Levy, at another house only a block away from home, to-day accompanied her lawyer, Henry J. Goldsmith, to Justice Davis in the Supreme Court to back his plea for $50 weekly alimony for her and $20 for himself.

Mr. Goldsmith told the Court that the couple were married just as the midnight bells were tolling the knell of the dying old year of 1906 and peaking out greetings to 1907.

"Benjamin Levy is rich, your Honor, but this husband's cupidity is his controlling trait, and before the wedding bells had stopped ringing and in the forenoon of that marriage day he demanded money from her. She refused, and there has been unpleasantness ever since. His charge against Mrs. Levy are groundless. He cannot win his suit for an absolute divorce, in which he names his own brother, David Levy, the wealthy cloak manufacturer, whose residence is a block away from his own, in Brooklyn. He is amply able to pay $50 weekly alimony to her."

Against this Julius Hochfelder said: "This woman is a notorious adventuress. She has a record in Johannesburg and every other city of South Africa. She is rich. She owns a $14,000 house in Brooklyn and we have sent her to the United States Consul at Johannesburg, South Africa, for records and other evidence by which we will try to show that she is a bigamist." Justice Davis reserved decision.

POISONED BABY AND SELF. RHODES, Tex., Dec. 27.—Mrs. J. W. Brammer to-day administered arsenic acid to her infant child and swallowed a dose herself. Both died almost instantly.

ACCUSES MINER OF MURDERING HIS DAUGHTER

Wanted to Marry Her, but Father Would Not Give His Consent.

Marie Machlesky, a buxom Polish girl of eighteen years, was shot dead last night in the hallway of her home, No. 340 Cherry street, and to-day the police hunted high and low for Carlin Tachaloff, a miner and suitor for the hand of the girl.

Tachaloff was finally arrested this afternoon at his home in Franklin Furnace, Pa. Lieut. O'Farrell at Headquarters got word about 2 o'clock that the Sheriff had locked the suspect up and would hold him until officers arrived from New York.

When the shot which startled the tenants in the building was fired Tachaloff was seen to dash up the steps from the cellar and rush into the street, disappearing in the night.

The father and mother of the dead girl and Zurecki were arraigned in the Essex Market Police Court and remanded by Magistrate Butts to the custody of the House of Detention. The trio were sent to the House of Detention as material witnesses.

The father declared: "That villain Carlin did this deed. He said there would be two corpses in my house. I think he meant that I should be the other. He killed my daughter, the murderer!"

The day before Christmas the miner was seen to hand the girl a revolver. The authorities of Franklin Furnace have been communicated with, and Tachaloff will be arrested and charged with the crime of murder if he returns to the mines. In the mean time the city is being searched and all railroad depots and ferries are being watched.

WOMAN DIES OF STARVATION; FAMILY IN WANT

Mrs. Prince's Four Little Children Ate Their Last Crumb on Christmas Day.

A pitiful case of destitution was found to-day by Capt. Evans of the Herbert street station, Williamsburg, in a bare little room on the top floor of No. 24 Manhattan avenue.

He went to the house upon a report from the Kings County Hospital that John Prince, who has been ill there many weeks, had seen nothing of his wife for a week and would like to hear from her. "Dwellers in the tenement told the police captain they had not seen Mrs. Phoebe Prince since Monday, when she seemed to be very ill."

The woman was found dying of starvation on a mattress on the floor with her four famished little children—Rose, four years old; Samuel, three; Kate, two; and Angeline, seven months. Mrs. Prince was able to say that her strength had given out on Monday. On Christmas day the children devoured the last crumb of bread in the room. They had no coal for heat and worn only scantily clad. None of the little ones was old enough to know how to summon aid for their mother.

When Capt. Evans heard the story he sent for an ambulance and also for an agent of the Children's Society. The woman was taken to the Eastern District Hospital, where she had not strength to survive the effects of a long period of insufficient nourishment and almost a week of actual starvation, and died in a few hours.
